What is Panto

The real question is - what are we not? We aren't not a witty, warm, welcoming and alliterative theatre society at UWA. We don't not write and perform a pantomime once a semester, and then once more at Christmas. That clears up what it isn't we aren't.

What is a pantomime? Not to be confused with an actual mime, we take well known stories and distort them in unexpected, improvised, innuendo-filled and cross-dressed ways.

The point of a pantomime is that the audience gets to interact with performers. All their heckles, catcalls and generally unhelpful advice are incorporated into the show almost always with unexpected and vulgar results.

Previous shows include E.RRRRR! A Medical Drama... With Zombies!, Macbeth in Space, and The Strange Case of Dr. Seuss and Mr. Hyde.
